Fair hog sale marks set

Several new records were established Wednesday night at the Junior Fair hog sale.

Scott Jenks' 220-pound grand champion went for a new record of $475 cwt, a total of $1,045, to Kaufman's Bargain Store and Montgomery Ward. The reserve champion, owned by Brad Walters, was sold to the Fayette County Bank for $355 cwt, also a new Fair record. The 205-pound hog brought a total of $727.

The old records were $385 cwt. for the grand champion and $255 cwt. for the reserve champion.

The total selling price of the 283 hogs was $43,493, which was $23,123 above Wednesday's market price of $35.25 cwt. The average price for the singles and the whole lot established new records.

The 123 singles averaged a whopping $111.94 cwt, well above last year's record-setting price of $84.57 cwt.

The overall average for the more than 28 tons of pork sold by auctioneer Merlin Woodruff was $75.26, which eclipsed last year's record of $74.10 cwt.

A complete list of the Junior Fair hog auction results will appear in Friday's edition of the Record-Herald.

Merchants oppose meter fine increase proposal

Council hears objections

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor

An ordinance increasing parking meter fines attracted opposition from downtown business merchants during the regular semi-monthly meeting of Washington C.H. City Council Wednesday night.

Council members placed the ordinance on its first reading after spending more than one hour discussing the proposal with representatives from five downtown businesses.

Legislation to increase parking meter fines has been prepared by City Council following its June 26 meeting. The proposed new fine structure will penalize violators at a note of $1 within the first 24 hours; $3 after the first 24 hours, but within a 10-day period, and $5 after 10 days of a mailed notice.

Downtown business merchants object to the proposal because of the "100 per cent increase" from the present fine structure of 50 cents for the first 24 hours to the new $1 fine.

RAY DOWNING, chairman of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce's Downtown Business Association, read a prepared statement, signed by 28 merchants, opposing Council's proposed meter fine increase.

The statement said: "We, the merchants of downtown Washington C.H. wish to announce our objection to the proposed fine increase from 50 cents to $1 for parking tickets.

"Customer relations is an extremely important element in our effort to attract customers to the central business district. This proposed 100 per cent increase in fines will only tend to alienate our present and future customers.

"We feel the improved enforcement of downtown parking and heavier fines on second and third tickets are sufficient to provide necessary turnover of meters."

Following a lengthy discussion, Councilman Ralph Cook moved to suspend rules on the measure and act on it as an emergency. Council member Donald E. Wood seconded the motion, but both city legislators later withdrew their motions.

The city has already ordered approximately $2,000 worth of new parking meter tickets, which reflect the increased rates. City Manager Dan Wolford said proofs of the new tickets should be received before Council's next meeting when the second reading of the ordinance will be held.

Increased costs of supplies, coupled with Council's hope for turnover of traffic in the downtown area, were the primary reasons behind the drafting of legislation for the new parking meter fine structure.

Harold Soldan said the merchants are objecting only to the increase from 50 cents to $1 and would have no objections to the city increasing the fine on the second or third ticket placed on the windshield of an auto in violation.

"We have no objection to slapping them (the customers) with second or even third parking tickets," said Soldan, one of the merchant representatives who attended the meeting.

Council members were questioned about the increase in revenue following

Impeachment likely

House panel resumes debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee resumed today its landmark debate on the impeachment of President Nixon, hearing first from a Republican who declared Nixon "is entitled to a presumption of innocence."

The assertion from Rep. Charles E. Wiggins of California came despite Tuesday's claim from another GOP defender of the President that a committee decision against Nixon is assured.

Wiggins has frequently been characterized as Nixon's most articulate defender on the committee, but he told the committee's second session of formal debate that "I wince" at that label because he believes simply that the case should be decided according to law.

If fairness is not the overriding factor in the epic proceedings, said Wiggins, "we would be doing a greater violence to the Constitution than any misconduct alleged of Richard Nixon."

Wiggins was the first of 27 committee members remaining to make opening statements in the debate on a proposed two-article recommendation of impeachment.

If the committee approves impeachment in a vote expected this weekend, then the full House of Representatives must decide whether to send the matter on to the Senate for trial.

Wiggins told his colleagues it was "not too late for me to challenge" whether they should sit in the proceeding if they have formed a preconceived notion on Nixon's guilt or innocence.

But despite his challenge, the committee was believed likely to vote impeachment, though the margin of such a vote remains to be determined.

The committee opened its historic debate Wednesday night before a nationwide television and radio audience that heard Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr., R-N.J., claim "There are sufficient votes here for an impeachment resolution."

"Everyone knows that. There is no use kidding ourselves about it," he said.

Sandman, who lined up against impeachment, was one of 11 committee members who gave their views in a televised presentation of the historic proceedings.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr.'s schedule for the 38-member committee calls for concluding general debate tonight and moving onto actual consideration of articles of impeachment Friday. That schedule suffered a slight setback last night when a bomb scare forced a 47-minute delay.

The threat, telephoned to the Capitol switchboard, forced Rodino to empty the packed room while police searched fruitlessly for a bomb. Later, after Rodino had recessed the proceedings for the night and the hearing room had almost emptied, a second bomb threat was received. Again nothing was found.

The most explosive item in the room was a resolution offered by Rep. Harold D. Donohue, D-Mass., calling for Nixon's impeachment on two broad articles, one based on the Watergate cover-up, the other charging him with abusing his powers of office.

The proposed articles, still subject to refinements, were drafted after day-long negotiations between pro-impeachment Democrats and seven fence-sitting members—four Republicans and three Southern Democrats.

Neither side would say publicly that the articles as presented represent an agreement, but one participant in the negotiations said he expects the seven undecided members to support at least one of them. That would produce a 26-12 vote in favor of impeachment.

The Watergate article accuses Nixon of acting "directly and personally and through his close subordinates and agents" to obstruct the investigation of the Watergate break-in.

It lists nine specific acts it says Nixon directed to carry out the cover-up, including the payment of hush money, the suppression of evidence, the misuse of the CIA and the making of "false or misleading public statements in his

Monotony relieved after bomb scare

HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just when everyone is getting restless in the committee room, hoping for a breath of fresh air and a respite from the speeches, along comes a bomb scare to make it happen.

Nobody, except perhaps the next speaker, voices a complaint. Even the privilege of sitting at a once-a-century impeachment debate has its drawbacks. The sitting is not the least of them.

You can't stand and stretch, switch channels or raid the refrigerator when things bog down.

Yet little is boring. This is an awesome proceeding.

"Let us be clear about this," says the silver-haired chairman, Peter W. Rodino Jr., at Wednesday night's opening session. "No official, no concerned citizen, no representative, no member of this committee welcomes an impeachment proceeding. No one welcomes the day when there has been such a crisis of concern that he must decide whether 'high crimes and misdemeanors,' serious abuses of official power or violations of public trust have in fact occurred."

But he adds in his raspy voice: "Let us go forward into debate in good will, with honor and decency ... Let us leave the Constitution as unimpaired for our children as our predecessors left it to us."

At 8:20 p.m. House switchboard operator Kristina Wildman receives a call from a woman: "There's a bomb in the House Judiciary Committee." The operator notifies the sergeant-at-arms.

Rodino is told. He holds a conference with colleagues, so unobtrusive that it attracts no attention away from the current speaker, Wisconsin Democrat Robert Kastenmeier.

The chairman lets him finish. A half hour has gone by.

Rodino bangs his gavel for a recess with the "meeting to resume at the call of the chairman." To inquiring newsmen, he murmurs: "Bomb Threat."

Capitol police clear the room and bring in dogs to sniff out explosives. Those going outside for fresh air find there is little this warm, humid July night.

Back inside 47 minutes later, the room still is warm. A haze persists under the bright television lights.

But now there is renewed vigor that seems to infect the speakers.

Republican Thomas F. Rallsback of Illinois, considered on the fence about impeachment, called a "swing vote" by those who predict the outcome, obviously is agitated.

"Some of my people say that the country cannot afford to impeach a President ... let me say to them and to countless others, including many, many young people ... the young people in this country think that we're not going to handle this thing fairly. If we're not really going to try to get to the truth you're going to see the most frustrated people, the most turned off people, the most disillusioned people ..."

New wagering mark set at races

Record crowd jams Fair

The Junior Fair hog sale and the final night of harness racing attracted a record crowd of 3,629 paying customers into the Fayette County Fair Wednesday.

A new record was also set at the race track where over $21,000 was wagered on the 16-race card. That figure broke the record which was set Tuesday night.

A parking space might have brought more than the $475 cwt. paid for Scott Jenks' grand champion barrow Wednesday night, as the gates were closed to cars at 7 p.m. However, Eddie Kirk, Fair board president, said there would be plenty of parking space tonight with the opening of the race track infield to cars. He said an additional 500-600 cars could be accommodated on the infield.

Highlight of the evening was the record $475 cwt. paid for Jenks' 220-pound grand champion barrow. Buyers of the hog were J.O. Garringer, Kaufman's Bargain Store, and John Toby, Montgomery Wards. The bid broke the old record of $385 cwt.

THE FAYETTE County Bank purchased Brad Walters' 205-pound reserve grand champion with a bid of $355 cwt. This was also a new Junior Fair record.

A total of 283 hogs were sold by auctioneer Merlin Woodruff for $43,493, a new record.

Racing fans saw Allstar Special win the three-year-old Ohio Colt

Racing Associations pace, while Sweet Interlude took the "Adios Butler Filly Pace," for three-year-old fillies.

Thursday brings a new event to the fair. A tractor pull will be held in front of the grandstand beginning at 7 p.m. The pull will feature both stock tractors and some highly-modified models, some with two engines. Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Betsy Hartman's lamb was chosen the grand champion of the Junior Fair market lamb show. The reserve champion was owned by Jim Hixon. The champion and reserve champion pen of three were exhibited by Susan Coe and Steve Coe, respectively.

More than 200 market lambs will be auctioned at 6 p.m. Thursday in the second of three livestock sales at the Junior Fair. The sale is held in the show arena.

In addition to the lamb judging, openclass swine and rabbits were judged along with Junior Fair poultry, breeding swine and small animals.

Karen Hoppes was awarded the first place trophy in the hog carcass contest. Her hog's carcass, not placing in the on foot valuation, yielded 64.89 lean cuts.

Thursday's activity also includes breeding beef judging, dog judging, and the Showman of Showmen contest featuring the top showmen from the dairy, beef, horses, swine, and lamb contests.

Garden club flower arrangements will also be judged Thursday afternoon.

CROWDED MIDWAY — A record crowd of 3,629 jammed their way into the Fayette County Fair Wednesday. The gates were closed to cars at 7 p.m. when parking spaces were exhausted. There should be plenty of parking today, however, as the race track infield will be open to park cars. Highlight of tonight's activity will be the tractor pull in front of the grandstand, and the Junior Fair lamb sale.

Lottery set for Tuesday

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois becomes on Tuesday the 11th state seeking to cash in on the growing popularity of legalized lotteries.

For 50 cents, anyone over age 18 will be able to buy a chance to win prizes ranging from $20 to $1 million.

Weekly drawings the first Aug. 8 will produce about 25,000 winners of prizes ranging from $20 to $300,000. A million-aire drawing will be held about every three months.

An estimated 10,000 grocery stores, pharmacies, newsstands, department stores, lodges and charitable organizations have been licensed to sell the tickets.

Sales agents get to keep 10 per cent of the take. Forty-five per cent will go to prizes, the balance to state government.

Promoters predict the lottery will add $60 million per year to state revenues, or about 7½ per cent of the $8 billion state budget. Ralph F. Batch, a former FBI agent who organized the New Jersey lottery and was hited away at a salary of $27,000 a year to set up the Illinois operation, estimates there has been a $700 million gross for all state lotteries since New Hampshire started the first in 1964.

Old language used in court decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — "It is emphatically the province and duty of the judicial department to say what the law is," Chief Justice John Marshall wrote 171 years ago.

Wednesday, ruling in the case of President Nixon and the Watergate tapes, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger found those words handy to express his meaning.

"It's 'emphatically the province and duty' of this court to 'say what the law is' with respect to the claim of privilege presented in this case," Burger wrote for eight justices of the court.

"What the law is" boiled down to this:

Yes, the President has a privilege to withhold confidential communications within the executive branch from public scrutiny.

No, that privilege is not absolute but is subject to review by the courts.

It was the first time in the nearly 185-year history of the court that it had been confronted with a claim such as the one advanced by Nixon: That only the President can decide whether he should provide evidence wanted for a criminal trial.

In answering the question, the court said it agrees with Nixon that it is important for conversations between high government officials and their advisers to be confidential.

"Human experience teaches that those who expect public dissemination of their remarks may well temper candor with a concern for appearances," wrote Burger.

Then the court turned to the specific case at hand, in which Nixon sought to resist an order to produce records of White House conversations wanted as potential evidence in the Watergate cover-up trial.

The court has ruled in the past that secret military and diplomatic information may be shielded from examination in the courts. But in the Watergate tapes, it said, national security is not involved.

Thus, it said, the President's claim rests on "no more than a generalized claim of the public interest in confidentiality of nonmilitary and non-diplomatic discussions."

That is not enough, Burger wrote. "We must weigh the importance of the general privilege of confidentiality of presidential communications in performance of his responsibilities against the inroads of such a privilege on the fair administration of criminal justice."

City Council action

the installation of over 600 fully-automatic meters here early this year and the city's legislators pointed out that the new parking program is not a profit-making scheme.

"I'm getting tired of hearing that meters are not a source of revenue. If there were no stores there would be no meters," Soldan said.

Wolford said the city realizes no profit from the meter revenue. He said the money is rechanneled into other areas for "better and expanded services."

Soldan said the merchants supported the recent increase from five to 10 cents on some meters when the new parking program was launched over six months ago. "We recognized the need for increased revenue," Soldan said. He also pointed out that the downtown businessmen raised $950 to correct "an error" when one-hour time limits were placed on meters in the prime business district.

A rate increase, from five to 10 cents, involved only 134 parking meters located along Court Street and areas of Main and Fayette streets. No rate increase was involved in any of the 557 other meters located throughout the city.

Downtown merchants supplied $950 to purchase necessary parts to change a number of parking meters from one-hour to two-hour time limits after the new program had been established.

"WHENEVER YOU do anything that has to do with parking meters everybody gets mad. It's merely psychology and it's whether you want a 50-cent fine increase to stir up everyone again," said City Council member Billie Wilson, who originated the parking meter fine increase.

Washington C.H. Police Chief Rodman Scott said parking meter control personnel have written as many as 350 tickets per week and there are still cars parked at expired meters.

He said complaints received at the police department indicate "it's not how much the parking ticket costs, but it's just the idea of receiving one."

Scott said he felt the addition of more meter personnel would be an harassment to downtown shoppers.

The conversation with the merchants shifted back and forth to a number of topics including the token system and the possibility of chalking out tires to serve as a means of checking meter violations.

City Council chairman John E. Rhoads said the possibility of writing more parking meter tickets would not solve any problems since it takes 9,000 of the 50-cent tickets to pay the parking control officer's salary.

"We'd prefer to write less tickets and have customers put money in the meters," Rhoads said.

Wilson suggested that Council review the situation with members of the city parking commission before the next regularly scheduled Council meeting.

Attending the meeting with Downing and Soldan were Mrs. Martha Reiff, Mrs. Connie Garringer and Steve Jennings.

In other downtown business-related matters:

Council agreed to waive an ordinance prohibiting sidewalk sales to permit the annual Old Fashioned Bargain Days promotion to be held here July 31-Aug. 3. Council member Mrs. Bertha McCullough urged that the city's ordinance prohibiting sidewalk displays be enforced, with the exception of special events such as the upcoming promotion.

Mrs. Reiff, chairman of the downtown beautification committee, requested that Council consider legislation requiring all downtown stores to place signs flush against the buildings.

Shultz role with IRS eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Dean III says President Nixon told him in 1972 that George P. Shultz was not made secretary of the Treasury "to be some sort of candy ass" and would have to help get tax audits on Sen. George S. McGovern's campaign contributors.

Former White House counsel Dean's testimony, released today by the House Judiciary Committee, shows he also said Nixon did not order an alleged $75,000 hush money payment, but "the President felt it was desirable."

Dean's closed-door July 11 testimony was released along with that of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

Dean testified Nixon made the comment about Shultz when Dean reported to the President Sept. 15, 1972, that then Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Johnnie Walters had refused Dean's request to audit a list of then Democratic presidential candidate McGovern's contributors.

"He (Nixon) said something to the effect, well, if Shultz thinks he's been put over there to be some sort of candy ass, he is mistaken, and if you have got any problems, you just come tell me and I will get it straightened out," Dean quoted the President.

Rep. Tom Railsback, R-Ill., said at the committee's opening deliberations on impeachment Wednesday night that Nixon's alleged comment on Shultz is among evidence that could cause Railsback to vote for recommending impeachment.

Shultz had become head of the Treasury Department, which also includes IRS, three months earlier, June 12.

Dean said that when he went back to IRS with Nixon's backing, Walters still refused to audit the McGovern contributors. Dean said he did not know if Nixon told Shultz to have the audits made.

O'Neill sees full house impeachment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite President Nixon's decision to turn over more Watergate tapes, a House Democratic leader says only a miracle can save Nixon from impeachment and Republican leaders made no move to delay the impeachment proceedings.

The assessment about the need for a miracle came from Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., House Democratic leader, who predicted the Judiciary Committee would recommend impeachment and that the full House would vote impeachment by at least 60 votes.

"And it could well be that a tidal wave would hit the House and he'd be impeached by over 100 votes," O'Neill said.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford said he thought Nixon's compliance with the Supreme Court order would help the President fight impeachment by swaying public opinion in his favor.

However, Ford conceded the question of whether the House would vote impeachment has "become a bit narrower" since when Ford first predicted the House would reject impeachment.

He also urged Nixon to turn over to the impeachment inquiry all relevant parts of the tapes. The Supreme Court

The threat of showers and thunderstorms over the northwest portion of Ohio by evening, and over the entire state during Thursday night comes from a weak low pressure trough now moving into the western sections of the Great Lakes region.

A flat high pressure ridge extending from New England southwestward to the lower Ohio River Valley held weather activity to a minimum over Ohio during the night. Skies were generally clear with temperatures by dawn generally ranging in the 50s except in the lower 60s in extreme southern sections.

Youngstown's 53 degree reading was the coolest daybreak reading in the state. Some patch ground fog which developed during the night burned off in a few hours after sunrise.

A chance of showers Saturday, fair Sunday and Monday. Highs in the 80s. Lows in the 60s.

Busing bill faces fight in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate-approved compromise that would limit busing for school desegregation faces a tough fight in the House, which is insisting on stronger curbs.

"We will stand firm," Rep. Joe D. Waggoner, D-La., a leader of busing opponents, said Wednesday after the Senate agreed, 81 to 15, to accept the compromise written into a $25.2-billion education bill.

The legislation is expected to be brought up in the House early next week. At that time, Waggoner will seek to have the bill sent back to conference with the Senate with instructions to insist on the House antibusing language.

On Monday, the House by a 261-122 vote reaffirmed its position that no pupil should be bused beyond the second-closest school to his home.

Film borders on unbelievable

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some melodramatic news events evoke the immediate response, "That sounds just like a movie." An American businessman's helicopter escape from a Mexican prison is one.

Now it is being filmed as "Breakout," with Tom Gries ("The Glass House," "QB VII") directing Charles Bronson as the daredevil pilot who masterminds plucking the American out of stir.

The actual figure was Victor Stadter of Glendora, Calif.

The real event happened shortly before midnight August 18, 1971, while most of the inmates of the Santa Maria Acatitla Federal Prison were watching a movie.

A helicopter swooped into the prison courtyard, collecting Joel David Kaplan, 42, serving a 28-year term for murder.

Kaplan was transferred to a light plane and flown to the United States, where he remains. In the wake of the bizarre escape came a flood of rumors and accusations, among them, that Kaplan worked for the CIA, that he had been railroaded to prison by a relative who wanted his inheritance.

"The reason the script works is the absurdity of the whole thing," says Gries. "The story would be unbelievable, except for the fact that it happened."

"We're sticking as close as possible to the story, changing only the names and certain relationships."

"The uncle, whom Kaplan accused of trying to keep him in prison, is played as a grandfather. The sister, who spent a reported million dollars to get Kaplan out of Mexico, becomes his wife."

The wife is played by Jill Ireland,

Stock list turns down

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market took a downward turn today in an atmosphere of uneasy waiting.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 8.29 at 797.48. Gainers and losers were closely balanced on the New York Stock Exchange, however.

Brokers said it appeared some traders were taking profits after the rally of the last three sessions to protect themselves against the possibility of disappointment this evening over either President Nixon's economic message or the weekly Federal Reserve report on credit market conditions.

Allegheeny Power was the most active NYSE issue, down 1/8 at 18 1/2 in trading that included a 108,800-share block at that price.

At the American Stock Exchange the market value index was up .24 at 81.01.

The NYSE's noon composite index of all its listed common stocks was off .28 at 44.24.

Westrans Industries was the Amex volume leader, up 1/4 at 13.

Strip Mine amendment approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted to prohibit strip mining in or near river beds in the West, adopting an amendment environmentalists said strengthened proposed regulations to control surface coal mining.

The vote Wednesday on an amendment by Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., brought the House nearer to final action on the strip mining legislation after five days of floor debate.

The House has been expected to take a final vote on the bill on Wednesday but because of other legislation and continued delaying tactics by opponents, was unable to devote more than about an hour to it.

Melcher's amendment, adopted 64 to 2, would ban mining in the proximity of the beds of rivers and streams in arid and semiarid areas. It also would ban mining in these areas where the water table lies so close to the surface that it supports extensive vegetation.

Melcher said the amendment would apply almost exclusively to the West, where millions of tons of strip mineable coal underlie dry prairie and grazing lands.

Officer faces assault charges

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Lancaster patrolman, Clarence Leroy Brunney, was charged in a three-count indictment by a federal grand jury here Wednesday with violating the constitutional rights of three youths.

The grand jury charged that Brunney, 45, struck three teenagers Oct. 15, 1972.

Foreign ministers meeting to seek peace on Cyprus

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The foreign ministers of Britain, Greece and Turkey prepared to meet here tonight to begin negotiations seeking permanent peace on explosive Cyprus.

James Callaghan of Britain, Turan Guney of Turkey and George Mavros of the new Greek government were expected to meet for about three days, adopt a communique supporting the cease-fire on the island the Turks invaded last Saturday and create a working group.

The working group would do the actual negotiating on such concrete matters as continued Turkish control of the Kyrenia-Nicosia corridor the Turks captured, the withdrawal from Cyprus of the Greek army officers who led the coup that ousted President Makarios and the restoration of constitutional government to the island.

The abdication of the Greek military dictatorship in Athens was considered a good omen for the negotiations. But the new interim president of Cyprus, Glafcos Clerides, said he had little faith

Sohio notes increase in earnings

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) says net income in the second quarter was up 19 per cent from the preceding year despite a sharp drop in earnings from domestic petroleum operations.

Sohio Chairman Charles E. Spahr said Wednesday domestic petroleum operations "played a major role last year but not thus far this year."

"At a time when our domestic petroleum operations suffer from high crude oil costs, government restrictions and limited sales volumes, we are fortunate that these difficulties have been more than offset by substantial benefits realized from past investments and diversifications into coal and nitrogen chemicals," Spahr added.

He said income from foreign operations also helped boost net income.

The company reported net income for the three months ended June 30 at $50.3 million, equivalent to $1.37 per share, on sales of $553.1 million.

Income tax data curb

Disclosures about White House use of individual income tax data for political purposes have been deeply shocking to the public. The Senate has now given effective voice to this general sense of outrage by wisely voting to impose tighter restrictions on access to tax returns.

The need for such legislation has been made clear in evidence received by Congress and the special prosecutor's office. It has been shown that persons high in the executive branch sought tax information which might be used against political opponents or newsmen. In some cases, objections of the Internal Revenue commissioner to such improper use of tax data were overridden. As Sen. Lowell P. Weicker told his colleagues in introducing the measure, the evidence "indicates widespread abuses by White House personnel."

It is heartening that the Senate has moved to bar executive branch access to tax returns except under carefully prescribed conditions. If this proposal becomes law, the IRS could make returns available only to: a) the president himself, if he personally requests them in writing; or b) Justice Department or Treasury employees involved in filing or auditing returns. This would outlaw a practice which is plainly wrong, and repugnant to all who have a sense of fair play.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

'Tiger cage' postscript

When Henry David Thoreau said he'd run for his life if he saw someone approaching him with the avowed intention of doing him good, he had something.

No doubt Augustus Hawkins (D-Calif.) and William Anderson (D-Tenn.) had the ultimate good of humanity in mind when, with Frank E. Walton, a foreign service officer with 20 years experience in California police work, as their guide, they visited the prison installation on Con Son, an island off the southeast coast of Vietnam. The Congressmen came home to report the existence of some horrifying disciplinary cells they called "tiger cages," using the Vietnamese phrase for what, in the Florida penal system, are known as "alligator pens."

THE CURIOUS thing about the whole business was that Frank Walton, an estimable citizen who was a swimming champion back in 1930 and subsequently fought with the Marines at Guadalcanal in World War II (he has a Purple Heart), didn't see what the two Congressmen claim to have seen.

Con Son may not have been a model prison by the best Western standards, but the "tiger cages" were 10-feet high, with roofs that allowed for light and ventilation as well as observation. They were for hard-core prisoners who had records of doing such things as assaulting guards with knives fashioned out of broken glass.

To Walton, the "tiger cage" occupants appeared to be in reasonable health and clean. He was shocked when the liberal press blew the Congressmen's reports of "atrocities" into stories about conditions that were "worse than Devil's Island." A staff aide to the Congressmen sold some photos to Life magazine that, so Walton says, were cropped to give a false representation of the actual "tiger cage" rooms.

Later in his tour of duty in Vietnam, Walton took Rep. Phil Crane (R-Ill.) to Con Son. Congressman Crane saw the same installations that Hawkins and Anderson had seen. He found all the prisoners to be adequately fed. The air in the cells, which Hawkins and Anderson had said was foul and stupefying, seemed cool and relatively fresh to crane.

Crane tried to set the record straight and his observations managed to make the Washington Post. But he complains that he couldn't catch up with what Hawkins and Anderson had disseminated. Other visitors — Congressman G. V. Montgomery (D-Miss.) and Astronaut Frank Borman — came back from Con Son with a corroboration of the Crane-Walton testimony.

"I think it is a reasonable prison," said Borman at an airport press conference.

EVEN THOUGH the refutations put on the record by Walton, Crane, Montgomery and Borman finally caused the liberals to drop the "tiger cage" allegations, it was too late to undo the harm that had been done. A train of activity, as Frank Walton reports, had been set in motion. The dogooders, spearheaded by Hawkins and Anderson, had persuaded the South Vietnamese government to destroy the "tiger cages." But the "improvements" at Con Son, funded by a million-dollar grant by the U.S., have turned out to be worse than the alleged disease.

Frank Walton reports the lugubrious upshot of it all. The disappearance of the 120 isolation cells at Con Son has caused additional overcrowding in already crowded compounds. The hard-core inmates, let free to roam the prison area, have staged damaging disturbances and indulged in sitdown strikes. Trustees have become hard to handle and have refused to work. More than half of some 3,500 trustees who had enjoyed freedom outside the walls of the camp have had to be returned to cell blocks.

To cap the story, the new cells that have been built in a new construction area are smaller, darker, hotter and less well-ventilated than the "tiger cages" ever were.

Con Son, says Frank Walton, has changed from a relaxed area to a "tough, up-tight prison." So take Thoreau's advice and run for your life if you see a couple of visiting U.S. Congressmen coming to do you good.

Chenault declared indigent

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Superior Court Judge Luther Alverson has declared the man accused of shooting to death Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr. a pauper and said the court will appoint a public defender to assist in the defense.

At the same time, the lawyer who has been representing Marcus Wayne Chenault said he would continue in the case.

Chenault, 23, faces two murder charges and one of aggravated assault in the slayings June 30 at Ebenezer Baptist Church of Mrs. King and deacon Edward Boykin, and the wounding of Mrs. Jimmie Mitchell. The shootings occurred during Sunday church services.

During Wednesday's hearing, Judge Alverson turned down a motion demanding that the district attorney produce additional evidence, including copies of reports from the Atlanta Police Department and the FBI.

Dist. Atty. Lewis Slaton said some of the information will be available to Chenault's attorneys, but he said the defense was not entitled to all the evidence.

Chenault, of Dayton and Columbus, Ohio, is scheduled for trial Sept. 9.

Credit for women laws are sought

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A dress shop refused credit in her own name to a woman in real estate who earns $20,000 a year.

Credit card companies would give another employed woman—on her present job 10 years and earning $14,000—no credit card in any name other than her husband's.

These are described as typical complaints being received by the Governor's Task Force on Credit for Women, which plans to recommend new laws to correct abuses later this year.

Diane W. Poulton, chairman of the 20-member task force, plans to conduct hearings around the state to gather information about the difficulty women have obtaining credit.

She said that since the task force was created last April "it has been flooded with complaints from women all over Ohio in all income brackets."

A two-day hearing in the Statehouse July 29-30 will get the research under way. Other hearings will follow in one-day sessions within the next two weeks in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Toledo and Athens.

The task force wants to hear from all women who have had trouble getting credit on their own, from representatives of the credit industry and other interested parties.

Ohio passed a law late last year that outlawed discrimination against women in the granting of mortgages. There are no other state or federal laws forbidding discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status in other credit practices.

Gov. John J. Gilligan told the task force at the outset that it should examine the various credit-granting institutions and the laws that govern them in Ohio.

"The growing number of women who need to obtain credit in their own name has brought hardships resulting from discriminatory practices and the lack of legal recourse for women who were denied credit," said Mrs. Poulton.

The lineup of hearings outside Columbus include Cincinnati city council chambers Aug. 1; Cleveland county administration building Aug. 6; Toledo city council chambers, and the Baker Center of Ohio University at Athens Aug. 13.

After its investigation the task force is scheduled to make recommendations for new laws to Gilligan and the legislature.

The longest animal ever recorded is the giant jellyfish (Cyanea arctica), which is found in the northwest Atlantic Ocean. One specimen washed up on the coast of Massachusetts, in 1865, had a bell 7½ feet in diameter and tentacles measuring 120 feet.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Jane eats them out of house and home

DEAR ABBY: Maybe others have this problem and your answer will help them and me, too.

I have a 14-year-old baby-sitter I'll call Jane. She lives in the neighborhood and her mother is a good friend of mine.

When my husband and I go out for an evening, we tell Jane what she may have to eat and drink, but when we come home, we find she has raided the fridge, cupboards and even the freezer!

She has eaten a quart of ice cream, with a pint of chocolate sauce, a pound of nuts, and she's cleaned out the cookie jar and candy dish in one evening! This is plus three or four bottles of soft drinks. She has even gone so far as to bake a cake mix, and packaged frosting, and eat the entire thing herself!

Jane's parents have spent a fortune sending her to doctors for her acne and weight problem. She seems to be getting worse. I've dropped hints, but to no avail. My husband says I should just quit asking her to baby-sit, but I'm afraid if I do her mother will wonder why.

Jane takes good care of the children and I like her. How should I handle this?

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: Jane is a compulsive over-eater. It would be a kindness to tell her mother that Jane needs help with her problem. If there is an Overeaters Anonymous in your area, I would urge Jane to get in touch with them. They have helped many a Jane. (And John, too.) If they aren't listed in your phone book, write to me.

DEAR ABBY: What's with women? They claim that they want to be individuals, but it isn't true.

Before my wife and I go to a party, or to join another couple or two, she calls the other women and asks: "Are you wearing a long dress or a short dress?" or "Are you wearing pants or a dress?" Men never care what the other men are wearing. Please print this, maybe someone else can explain it to me if you can't.

INDIVIDUAL (MALE)

DEAR MALE: Most women feel more comfortable (and less conspicuous) if the other women in their party are dressed in similar attire. Most men couldn't care less.

DEAR ABBY: Does this problem have a solution? We have a neighbor who gives us no privacy whatsoever when we want to relax outdoors to enjoy a quiet barbecue supper, or just sit and visit.

The moment she sees us outside she "joins" us—even when we're entertaining guests. And she stays until we go inside.

I realize she must be lonely, but must we suffer her presence whether we like it or not? I might add, when she is in the group she dominates the conversation.

DEE LEMMA

DEAR DEE: You have two choices. Suffer her presence, or come right out and tell her that you'd like a little privacy. It seems unkind, but that may be your only salvation. It's up to you.

Dayton woman critical after U.S. 35 mishap

A Dayton woman is presently at Mount Carmel Hospital in Columbus, listed in critical condition with injuries sustained from an accident at 8:36 a.m. Thursday.

A car driven by Iris L. Gist, 67, traveled off the right side of U.S. 35 and collided with a utility pole, near the Eyman Road intersection, for no apparent reason.

Ohio Highway Patrolman Larry Hopkins, stated there was no sign of skid marks which would have indicated an attempt on the woman's part to stop.

After striking the pole, the Gist car continued across the Eyman Road intersection, where it smashed into a roadside culvert and flipped over on its top.

While Ptl. Hopkins and Fayette County Sheriff's Deputy Dave Krupla were at the scene attempting to remove Ms. Gist from the vehicle, fire broke out under the hood and started to spread to the spilled gasoline on the road and in the ditch.

Deputy Krupla and Ptl. Hopkins were successful in dousing the flames with their cruiser fire extinguishers, before the Washington C.H. Fire Department arrived. Firemen hosed down the car to make sure the fire had been extinguished.

Ms. Gist was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital by Gerstner-Kinzer ambulance service and then transferred to Mount Carmel Hospital in Columbus.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported two accidents which occurred Wednesday and the Washington C.H. Police Department reported one.

A dog owned by Frank E. Black, Washington-New Martinsburg Rd., was killed when struck by a car driven by Rhoda E. Robinette, 48, Greenfield, at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday, on the Washington-New Martinsburg Road, three-tenths of a mile south of Ohio 41-S.

Sheriff's deputies reported the dog had been chasing another car, traveling in the opposite direction of the Robinette auto, when struck by it.

A parked car owned by Arthur Schlichter, Jeffersonville, was struck by a car driven by James W. Greenwalt, 56, Springfield, while parked at the Fayette County Fairgrounds at 5:15 p.m. Wednesday, sheriff's deputies reported.

An accident at the intersection of North and Court streets at 12:33 p.m. Wednesday, involved cars driven by Richard A. Rundblad, 50, of 628 Belle Aire Place and Karen L. Cook, 18, of 1229 High St., Washington C. H. police reported.

Texas cons threaten to kill 10 hostages

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Armed convicts say they will kill the 10 hostages they are holding in the state prison library unless they are given automatic weapons, ammunition and bullet-proof vests.

Negotiations between the rebel convicts and prison authorities were broken off by the inmates at about 1 a.m. today. They said they would start talking again today.

The hostages include five men and four women civilian teachers and librarians and one guard, said Dr. Don Kirkpatrick, assistant director of the Texas Department of Corrections. Kirkpatrick said at least three convicts were involved.

Kirkpatrick told newsmen Wednesday night the apparent leader of the rebels, Fred Gomez Carrasco, had demanded six bullet-proof vests, three bullet-proof helmets and visors, three walkie-talkie radios, three M16 automatic rifles, five magazines of ammunition, 100 loose rounds for each rifle and "suitable clothing for the three of us."

Kirkpatrick said Carrasco, who was sentenced to life for assault with attempt to murder a police officer at San Antonio, had threatened to execute the hostages if the demands were not met.

"Mr. Carrasco is not pushing us for any time deadline," Kirkpatrick said. "It is also interesting to note there have been no transportation demands."

Kirkpatrick said there was only a double door leading into the library and

Law enforcement conference slated

GLOUSTER, Ohio (AP) — Representatives of law enforcement agencies in 25 counties will attend the year's first Liquor Law Enforcement Conference July 29 at Burr Oak Lodge.

Ohio Department of Liquor Control Director Richard E. Guggenheim said the goal of the three-day session is to strengthen cooperation between local law enforcement agencies and liquor investigators.

Carrasco was making the hostages sit in front of it, rotating them about every 20 minutes.

This prevented sharpshooters from firing into the room, he said.

Kirkpatrick identified the three other convicts in the library as Rudolfo Dominguez, serving a 15-year sentence from San Antonio for assault to murder; Ignacio Cuevas, a Mexican national serving a 45-year sentence for murder; and Ray Robinson, serving a sentence for rape in Dallas.

He said he did not believe Robinson was an active participant.

The demands were delivered to officials by the prison chaplain, the Rev. Joseph O'Brien, a Roman Catholic priest who was in and out of the library several times Wednesday night conferring with Carrasco. Carrasco served as a porter in the prison chapel.

Prison authorities said Carrasco and his companions took control of the library about 1 p.m. Wednesday, brandishing three handguns. Officials said they did not know where the convicts obtained the weapons. Correctional officers at the prison do not carry arms.

The convicts originally took 11 hostages, but one, Glenn Johnson, 51, suffered an apparent heart attack about 9:30 p.m. and was freed.

Johnson was reported in stable condition at a Huntsville hospital.

Prison officials said there were 57 inmates in the library at the time of the takeover, including Carrasco.

The rebels let 50 inmates leave immediately and another three left some 5½ hours later.

Asked by newsmen Wednesday night if he thought Carrasco would carry out the threat to kill the hostages unless the rebels' demands were met, Kirkpatrick replied, "He's shot people before."

Asked the same question, Father O'Brien said, "I believe he will. I believe he will kill those people."

Grand theft defendant changes plea to guilty

The defendant in the theft case which was being presented before a Common Pleas Court jury Wednesday morning agreed to change his plea to guilty if the charge was reduced from grand theft to petty theft. When Judge Evelyn W. Coffman agreed to the new plea on the lesser charge, the jury was dismissed, and thence continued for sentencing.

Glenn Shelton Jr., 51, Sabina, pleaded guilty to petty larceny in connection with the theft of a large piece of carpeting from the Redman Industries mobile home plant in the Industrial Park.

Sentencing was scheduled to take place at 3 p.m. Wednesday afternoon in the Courthouse, but the court baliff reported shortly after that time that sentencing had been postponed for a later time.

When contacted Thursday morning, Judge Coffman refused to say when or where sentencing would occur, or whether sentence had already been imposed.

Representing the state at the trial was John O. Crouse, of Hillsboro, who was retained by the county to prosecute the case. County prosecutor James A. Kiger disqualified himself because he had previously had privileged conversations with the defendant. Roger W. Heltzel represented Shelton.

A list of jurors was unavailable due to the closing of the court Thursday so that Courthouse employees could attend the county fair.

Impeachment

capacity as President for the purpose of deceiving the people of the United States ...

The abuse of power article charges Nixon with authorizing illegal wiretaps, establishing a special investigative unit in the White House to engage in unlawful activities—such as the break-in of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office—and with interfering with the administration of the Internal Revenue Service and the FBI.

Both articles, and the specific acts cited in them, follow closely the major concerns in the impeachment inquiry of Rep. Thomas F. Railsback, R-Ill., in whose office the uncommitted members drafted their proposals for submission to the pro-impeachment group.

Railsback delivered an emotional speech Wednesday night in which he stopped short of saying he would vote for impeachment but left no doubt he was bothered by Nixon's actions in the Watergate cover-up and in his use of the IRS and FBI.

"If there is anything that is going to affect my vote, it is misuse of sensitive agencies," he said.

Speaking without notes, Railsback was the only member who ran over the 15 minutes allotted each speaker. He said he had been agonizing over his decision for months. He warned that "the young people in this country" will become frustrated and disillusioned if the committee adopts an attitude that the country cannot afford to impeach a president and fails to get at the truth.

Another Midwest Republican, Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, expressed major concerns that he said troubled him.

McClory said he did not think the evidence before the committee implicated Nixon in Watergate, but that the President could not escape some responsibility for offenses those around him committed.

The Republican speeches were in sharp contrast to the crisp presentations of the Democrats.

"Should Richard M. Nixon be found guilty of obstruction of justice? Yes," said Rep. William L. Hungate, D-Mo. "Should Richard M. Nixon be found guilty of abusing the powers of his office? Yes. Should Richard M. Nixon be found guilty of contempt of and defiance of Congress and the courts? Yes."

Texas Rep. Jack Brooks, who used only about 4 of his 15 minutes, said the catalogue of crimes that go under the name Watergate amount to a record of corruption unequalled in the nation's history.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., said he had concluded "that President Nixon has been conclusively and intentionally engaged in serious misdeed, that he has corrupted and subverted our political and government processes to the extent that he should be impeached and the matter of his guilt or innocence referred to the Senate for trial."

Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., said no one should vote for impeachment who is not convinced already of Nixon's guilt. Before he could cast such a vote, he said, he would have to be convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that Nixon was guilty of a serious enough offense to require his removal from office.

Some plants produce new plants from their own leaves, as demonstrated with the help of a "Living Leaf Kit" that includes material to start foliage plants, plus botanical information for school projects.

According to the kit's producer (John's Dewkist Nurseries at Apopka, Fla.), leaves from Bryophyllums, Sansevieria and Peperomias will produce plants from their leaf edges and surfaces. The kit contains three specimen leaves, plastic pots and trays, vermiculite and peat moss as the culture medium. Presprouted Sansevieria Hahnii leaves are included.

Those Vitamins

Vegetables are important sources of iron, vitamin A, vitamin C, riboflavin and carbohydrates.

Plants do not actually produce vitamin A but do produce provitamin A that is converted to vitamin A by the body. Good sources are dark green and deep yellow vegetables such as spinach, broccoli, chard, kale, turnip greens, carrots, winter squash, cantaloupes and pumpkins.

Vitamin B, according to horticulturist John A. Wott of Purdue University, is a complex of nutrients such as riboflavin (found in leafy vegetables), thiamin (found in dried peas and beans) and niacin (found in fresh peas and beans).

If you don't get enough niacin your digestive and nervous systems may be damaged. If you lack thiamine, the body cells may not get enough energy from food. Insufficient riboflavin can hurt eyes and skin.

Vitamin C sources include cantaloupes, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, raw cabbage, collards, sweet peppers, turnip greens and tomatoes. Vitamin C holds body cells together and strengthens blood vessel walls.

Sunlight generates vitamin D, which helps the body use calcium and phosphorous to build bones and teeth.

The fresher the vegetable the higher the nutrient content, which begins to

Camping important

4-H Roundup

By CATHY WHITE
4-H Assistant

For many Ohio 4-H'ers going to camp will be a part of the vacation doings. The camp may be a three-five day event at any of many 4-H camp sites throughout the state. The camp is divided into living groups with counselors. For older 4-H'ers the camp may be a conference combining the recreation of camping and a study of some topic such as health, safety, natural resources, citizenship.

Increasingly popular are day camps, especially for younger 4-H'ers and other youth in that age group. The "campers" get together for several hours each day for 5 to 15 days and return home each night. They learn crafts, games, nutrition and take part in many activities.

Why is camping a part of the youth program of the Ohio State University Cooperative Extension Service? An answer could be the list of objectives of camping. A successful camping experience meets these objectives — growth in an awareness of nature, learning how to live with others, a gain in maturity through understanding oneself, and an encounter with new learning experiences.

Camping offers an opportunity to come closer to nature, to live with each other and grow in an acceptance and understanding of each other, to become aware of ones own position and responsibility in the world, and to discover new things about the world and self.

There are still two over night camps and two day camps left for the summer.

The two 4-H over night camps are open to 4-H members. They are for beginners campers and senior campers.

The two Day Camps are open to all youth 9 - 11 regardless of 4-H memberships. The Day Camps are co-sponsored by the County Commissioners, City Recreation Department, Federal Food Service program and 4-H. They will both take place at Eastside School, one July 29 - Aug. 1 and the other Aug. 5 - 8. The Day Camps will be in session from 9-2 daily.

Any information about any camp can be obtained by calling or contacting the Fayette County Extension Office, 319 S. Fayette St., (335-1150).

Sponsored by Eli Lilly and Co., 4-H'ers in the 4-H health program, working as individuals and groups, participate in activities where they learn the importance of basic personal hygiene, and the importance of proper health maintenance and disease prevention.

In addition, career possibilities in health related fields, such as medicine, food processing and public health are stressed in the Cooperative Extension Service program supervised program.

Eli Lilly and Co., program donor, provides incentive and recognition to outstanding individuals and groups in the 4-H health program. As part of his 4-H health activities, a recent national 4-H winner in the program studied the effects of smoking and drug abuse on one's health. Clyde McCoy, of La Junta, Colo., also studied the purity of his community's water supply. Through his work and interest in the 4-H health program, McCoy plans to continue in the field of health as a veterinarian.

Clubs participating in the program have helped organize blood drives, supervised inoculations for disease, sponsored seminars and discussions on drug abuse, drinking, and sponsored medical examinations and dental care for their members and other young people.

Spain looks to post-Franco era

By FENTON WHEELER
Associated Press Writer
MADRID, Spain (AP) — No matter how Generalissimo Francisco Franco's battle to regain his health turns out, Spain already has slipped into the post-Franco era.

The crossover took place when the 81-year-old chief of state, fighting for his life in a Madrid clinic, temporarily transferred the last of his vast powers to Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon. Politicians view the shift as an irreversible political step toward the future, even if Franco takes some of it back.

The country accepted the end of 35 years of one-man rule without a quiver, or "serenely and with maturity," as the government-controlled press put it.

One of Franco's doctors said Tuesday he saw no medical reason why the old man couldn't function again as chief of state whenever he wants to. Privately, however, doctors predict a long and uncertain period of recuperation, with Franco's advanced age working against a full physical comeback.

Constitutionally, Franco can rescind at any time the verbal order surrendering power. Politically, it may be another matter.

To bounce the chief-of-state powers back and forth could be damaging to both Franco and the 36-year-old prince he has trained from boyhood to be his successor. High government officials are known to feel that Juan Carlos should be allowed to stay on the job in a testing period while Franco still is around.

Said a member of the political opposition: "We, the Socialists, and the Christian Democrats and the Communists, I believe, are in agreement to give Juan Carlos a chance."

"We do not expect the prince to do much while Franco is alive. But the prince is of a generation that is not responsible for the crimes of the civil war. We can accept him on that basis. People of his age are the majority in Spain and they want liberalization."

Franco surrendered the first of the powers that he took after winning the civil war in 1939 when he named his longtime confidant, Adm. Luis Carrero Blanco, as premier in June 1973.

The admiral was assassinated last December—a stunning blow to Franco—and the mayor of Madrid, Carlos Arias Navarro, replaced him. Juan Carlos and Arias Navarro are now the country's leaders.

With the powerful influence he has accumulated over the years, Franco still commands a strong following both inside and outside the government. But he is not the same political force he was, only two weeks ago.

Housing courts urged for Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A new system of courts to handle help with enforcement has been proposed by Rep. Michael P. Stinziano, D-30 Columbus, cosponsor of Ohio's newly approved landlord-tenant bill.

He said Wednesday he already is working on a measure that would establish housing courts in Ohio's major cities.

"The complexity and importance of this legislation highlights the need for housing courts to make it effective," Stinziano said.

He added that similar courts in other states "have resulted in making access to the courts easier, less confusing and less expensive for both landlords and tenants."

Many features of the bill, enacted by the House and Senate at their one-day session earlier this week, provide for court involvement in one way or another.

The Columbus lawmaker estimated that in those cities which currently have ordinances on their books involving landlords and tenants, about one of every five municipal cases in-the Junior Fair hog sale Wednesday evening at the Fayette County Fair. The carcass of her hog contained 64.89 per cent ham, loin and shoulder cuts.

There were 35 hogs that met minimum placing standards in the contest. They were slaughtered by Dinner Bell Foods and judged by Ed Hodge of that company.

Second place went to Kris Wolfe and third place to Tammy Walters. In order of finish, the rest of the top 10 were Tony Walters, Ednabelle Hoppes, Jerry Hoppes, Brad Walters, Rusty Coe, Jesse McFadden, and Keith Montgomery.

Driver law ruled void

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — A Butler County Common Pleas Court judge ruled Wednesday that sections of the Ohio Revised Code depriving persons of their driving rights without a hearing are unconstitutional.

"The legislature had endeavored to provide civil penalties and superimposed them on criminal penalties and is beyond their constitutional authority to do so without due process," said Judge Robert L. Marrs in his ruling.

Judge Marrs noted the sections allow the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to suspend the driving rights of any person and the vehicle registration of any person found guilty of violating any one of seven criminal offenses.

Findlay-based firm to buy Albers store

Albers Super Market will exist no more, at least not in Washington C.H. A newly formed corporation, Food World, Inc., has contracted to purchase 25 retail food stores in this area which have been operating under the names of Albers and Big Star.

C.W. Cheek, chairman of the board of Great Scot Corporation, an investment and management company headquartered in Findlay, has announced that Food World will soon purchase the food stores located in Washington C.H., Columbus, Springfield, Dayton, Zanesville, Newark, Heath, Lancaster, Chillicothe, Hillsboro, Wilmington and Xenia. The firm is currently seeking offices and warehouse space in Columbus which will provide headquarters for the new company.

Cheek stated that the immediate goals of Food World include an intensified advertising campaign and promotional activities. He said that the majority of personnel in the stores would be retained.

A representative of the local Albers said that he sees no significant changes immediately other than some new advertising. He said the new corporation seems "very willing to spend a few dollars on advertising."

The sale will end a 35-year bond between area residents and Albers. The chain opened its first store on Hinde Street in 1939. Albers relocated to its current address on Columbus Avenue in Jan., 1962.

The building is 120 feet wide and 125 feet deep, providing more than 12,000 feet of display space for foods. One and three-quarter acres of paved parking area accommodates 160 cars.

The Albers chain was begun by William H. Albers in 1933. In 1955, Albers merged with Colonial Stores Incorporated, and the firm has more than 450 stores currently in operation, most of which are between Ohio and the Eastern seaboard.

Mr. Albers died in 1954 after becoming widely known for his philanthropic and civic endeavors.

President readies tapes turnover

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Pledging to comply with the Supreme Court's Watergate tapes ruling "in all respects," a disappointed President Nixon has ended weeks of uncertainty with the declaration, "I respect and accept the court's decision."

Some eight hours after the court announced on Wednesday its 8-0 decision that Nixon must surrender 64 additional tapes and documents, the President issued a statement through his chief Watergate defense lawyer, James D. St. Clair.

Drafted after lengthy conferences at Nixon's oceanside home here, it ended suspense heightened by weeks of refusal by presidential aides to say whether he would obey an adverse court ruling.

"While I am disappointed in the result, I respect and accept the court's decision, and I have instructed Mr. St. Clair to take whatever measures are necessary to comply with that decision in all respects," the President said.

Nixon had challenged in the courts a subpoena for the tapes and documents from special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, who said they were needed for the cover-up trial of six former White House and campaign aides, scheduled for Sept. 9. The defendants include H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and John N. Mitchell.

Weeks may yet pass before the tapes and documents are made available to Jaworski. They must be screened for relevance by U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica.

Appearing before newsmen and television cameras at the White House press center in nearby Laguna Beach on Wednesday afternoon, St. Clair spoke of "the time-consuming process of reviewing the tapes subject to the subpoena and the preparation of the index and analysis required" He said the work "will begin forthwith."

In the past, tapes provided to Jaworski have been supplied to the House Judiciary Committee for its impeachment inquiry. It was not known immediately whether the latest subpoenaed material ever would figure in congressional consideration of impeachment.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler was asked how much time would be needed to process the tapes. "There's really no way to say," he replied.

Ziegler, responding to questions, said possible defiance of the court was not an option Nixon and St. Clair discussed Wednesday. He suggested that defiance never had been given serious consideration in the past, either.

Ziegler also said Nixon resisted surrendering the subpoenaed material only on grounds of principle and not because he feared they might contain incriminating material.

Nixon said in his statement that he had refused to comply with Jaworski's subpoena because of "my strong desire to protect the principle of presidential confidentiality in a system of separation of powers."

A gold nugget was found in Dawson City, Yukon, that weighed 72 ounces and 8.5 grains. It was nearly six inches long and was 2 3/4 inches wide at the heavy end and 1 1/4 inches at the smaller end. At $16 an ounce it was valued at $1,158 in 1898.

Ability to curb pickets to face UMW leadership

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The United Mine Workers' ability to control pickets it does not represent will be tested this afternoon at the Eastover Mining Co. at Highsplint.

In an agreement signed Wednesday with the National Labor Relations Board and approved by a federal judge, the UMW agreed that by 5 p.m. EDT today it would reduce to six the number of pickets at the Highsplint site.

UMW Counsel Chip Yablonski warned both before and after the agreement in U. S. District Judge Mac Swinford's courtroom that the UMW cannot give orders to some of the pickets whom he said are Highsplint employees represented by the rival Southern Labor Union (SLU).

But he said, "We are committed to utilize whatever efforts we can" to meet the requirements.

After the agreement was reached and approved by Swinford, Yablonski disclosed that the UMW has asked the NLRB to schedule an election at Highsplint so that the UMW can replace the SLU as the official bargaining agent of the 100 employees there.

As it stands, Highsplint is the only one of the three Eastover mines in Harlan County not represented by the UMW. Up to this week it was the only one of the three not shut down by a one-year strike the UMW staged after contract talks failed at Eastover's Brookside and Bailey's Creek mines.

The NLRB had asked Swinford to issue a temporary restraining order to stop picketing at the mine, contending the picketing deprived Highsplint employees of their right to work.

But Yablonski told Swinford that massive picketing which shut down the mine at Highsplint earlier this week was the result of a walkout by Highsplint employees, all SLU members, upset because two fellow employees were dismissed, allegedly for honoring the UMW picket lines.

About 150 pickets were at Highsplint the early part of this week.

Liza Minelli divorced
NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Liza Minnelli and songwriter Peter Allen, who were married in 1967, are now divorced after living apart for four years.

Supreme Court Justice Amos E. Bowman granted the uncontested divorce at a brief hearing on Tuesday. Allen, a 30-year-old Australian, appeared at the hearing but Miss Minnelli, 28, was in Las Vegas.

Ohio woman opens battle against Gettysburg tower

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Mrs. Marian Smith says she plans to talk to Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp "and anyone else who can help" to get a 307-foot observation tower removed from the Gettysburg National Cemetery.

Arriving this week for her annual visit to her husband's grave in the Gettysburg National Cemetery, Mrs. Smith was astounded to see the tower that overlooks it.

"I have been in a state of shock since I arrived to see that horrible thing hovering over my husband's grave," said Mrs. Smith, whose husband, Air Force Col. Newman T. Smith, died four years ago at Westover Air Force Base, Mass.

The sight of the tower, built by developer Thomas R. Ottenstein of Silver Spring, Md., so aroused Mrs. Smith that she says she wants to have her husband's body removed from the historic Civil War battlefield where President Abraham Lincoln gave the Gettysburg Address.

She said she'll decide where to transfer the body after she returns home and talks to her children in Fairborn, Ohio.

"He chose the National Cemetery at Gettysburg because he couldn't bear to think of the crowds at Arlington outside Washington D.C.," she explained. "He used to say, 'I want to be buried at Gettysburg where it's peaceful and quiet.' He would have hated to have all those people looking down on his grave from the tower."

Her husband was buried here three days after he died. In the military for 24 years, he served as a much-decorated B-52 command pilot in Korea and Vietnam.

Construction of the tower, in the planning stage since 1970, started in the spring of 1973 and Ottenstein maintains he will open it this summer. But he hasn't said why there is a delay.

The National Park Service said it has received about 200 letters of complaint about the tower in the past three years. There have been 42 since last January, it said and many came from relatives of people buried there.

CORNER OF COURT & HINDE STREETS

IMAGINATIVE FUTURE VOTER — Suzie Zimmerman, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Zimmerman, Ohio 734-E, knows that Richard Celeste (left), candidate for lieutenant governor, would capture more of the youngsters' votes if he rode the ferris wheel more often. She explained to him that the ferris wheel was the best part of the fair; she had ridden it twice. Her father and Celeste seem slightly amazed at the new strategy, but who knows. Bucky Dumford, center, accompanied Celeste all afternoon, and Robert Mace, right, joined the group for part of the tour.

Lt. governor hopeful tours Fair

By GEORGE MALEK

Democratic lieutenant governor hopeful, Richard F. Celeste, spent some two and a half hours touring the Fayette County Fair Wednesday afternoon with his ballot buddy, Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford, candidate for state representative from the 77th District. The two later attended some of the harness races and were announced to those in the grandstand.

Dumford, better known locally than the aspiring Celeste, introduced the young candidate to dozens of local residents, and the two of them introduced themselves to many more.

Celeste and his family were met as they entered the Fairground by Milbourne Barney, Fayette County Democratic Chairman, and Dr. Lloyd A. Wood, Congressional candidate. County commissioner Robert Mace accompanied Celeste for a major portion of the tour.

A congenial young man, Celeste presently serves in the state assembly as majority whip. Dumford termed him "a brilliant young candidate," and his statement is adequately evidenced by Celeste's record.

HE IS A graduate of Yale University and was selected to receive a Rhodes Scholarship. It was while studying at England's Oxford University that he met his wife, Dagmar, who was also a student. They have since added five children to the family corps.

Although most of those met at the Fairground were new acquaintances, Celeste did see some persons he had met previously. One chance meeting marked a reunion after many years of separation.

While touring the Mahan Building, Celeste met Mrs. Bernard Eiselstein, whom he had known as a youth in Lakewood, a suburb of Cleveland, where he was raised. An active member of the United Methodist Church, Celeste had worked with Mrs. Eiselstein through church activities of the Lakewood congregation.

He also recognized four young exhibitors who had participated in a county fair he toured last week.

After completing the tour Celeste attended a dinner at the Terrace Lounge and spoke to the 18 people present.

He and his family then left for Columbus where he is staying with his brother.

Celeste's main thrust during his campaign has been that the office of lieutenant governor has become a "sterile, ceremonial position." He points out that the holder of the office presides over the Senate and votes only in case of ties, something which has not happened in over 100 years.

Judge dismisses case

Judge Omar Schwartz ruled Wednesday afternoon that there was insufficient evidence to prove beyond reasonable doubt that a defendant charged with driving while intoxicated was guilty of the alleged violation.

Defense attorney John C. Bryan, representing Robert Dewese, 529 Third St., motioned for acquittal after the presentation of evidence by the prosecution. The testimony had not conclusively shown that the defendant was under the influence of alcohol.

Dewese had not submitted to a breathalyzer test, and his actions were not sufficiently impaired to indicate an excess of alcohol.

However, since the defendant refused the test, he is subject to an operator's license suspension of up to six months by the state of Ohio.

Although a jury had been summoned, Bryan decided early in the proceedings that he preferred the case be heard only by the judge, and the jury was dismissed.

Gary Smith represented the city in the action, and Police Specialist Larry Hott, the arresting officer, and Patrolman Mike Stritenberger were called to testify.

Beat patrolmen reducing crime

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—An experimental program that brings policemen back to walking the beat has been successful in reducing crime in the test area to a marked degree, a spokesman for the Cincinnati Police Community Relations Office said Wednesday.

Cindy McCartney said that crime figures for the first half of 1974 show that offenses reported were down to 3,209, compared with 3,547 for January to June, 1973.

Rhodes urges tax relief

TIFFIN, Ohio (AP)—Former Gov. James A. Rhodes said today he believes any surplus state funds should be used to reimburse working married couples and parents of dependent children "for the discriminatory taxes extracted from them."

In remarks prepared for release in Tiffin today, the former chief executive said working married couples are discriminated against by punitive extra taxation.

He called exemptions for dependent children inadequate, saying, "Everybody knows it costs more than $500 a year to feed and clothe youngsters. Even the federal income tax allows $750."

Rhodes also said tax relief for working couples and parents of dependent children would aid in fighting inflation.

Rhodes is the Republican nominee for governor this year.

Underground phone cable work to open here Monday

Work will begin Monday on an underground cable conduit line which will provide space for future telephone lines to serve the north portion of Washington C.H. and the developing residential subdivisions along Ohio 41, Bruce Galloway, Ohio Bell commercial manager, announced today.

Construction will start in the alley west of Forest Street between E. Market and E. Temple streets. The conduit route will cross Rawlings Street and continue north along the west curbline of Pearl Street to Gibbs Avenue. Turning west on Gibbs, it will join existing underground facilities on North Street, Galloway noted.

"Our engineers estimate that construction will be completed in about six weeks," Galloway said.

While all of the aerial cable along the route will not be removed at once following construction of the underground conduit, we do plan to remove one of the overhead cables this fall, he added.

TRAFFIC WILL be maintained on all roadways near the work site during construction of the conduit line. Warning lights will be placed to alert motorists and pedestrians to the construction and open trenching will be filled as rapidly as possible.

All sidewalks, treelawns, driveways, berms and roads disturbed as a result of the construction will be restored to their original conditions.

"In keeping with Ohio Bell's environmental commitment," Galloway pointed out, "this new telephone cable construction will be buried so that phone lines in the area will not interfere with the natural beauty of the area." An added benefit of this kind of telephone cable construction is that the lines are protected from such hazards as wind, ice, snow and traffic accident damage.

The conduit will provide space for the placement of 12 local and long distance telephone cables. It will be 4,500 feet long and will have six manhole entrances.

Cost of the project, including laying the conduit and associated engineering expense, will be approximately $200,000.

Contractor for the conduit and manhole construction work is Fischel & Co., of Columbus, successful bidder for the job.

State funds earmarked for school

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Vocational school construction in 11 state school districts will benefit from the recently approved $124.7 million supplemental appropriations bill, State Superintendent of Public Instruction Martin W. Essex said Wednesday.

Essex said of the $58.9 million earmarked in the bill for education, $12.5 million will be used to complete vocational education construction projects in eight counties.

He said another $45.6 million will be allotted to the more than 4,000 elementary and secondary schools in Ohio, providing support amounting to $20 a pupil.

The remaining $800,000 will be used at state schools for the blind and deaf, Essex said.

He said $500,000 has been allotted to build a swimming pool for students at the State School for the Blind and the Ohio School for the Deaf.

The State School for the Blind will also receive $300,000 to make building repairs.

Essex called the provisions of the appropriations bill, "humanitarianism of the highest order."

Ohio shows slowdown in population

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — More than 185,000 persons have moved out of Ohio in the past four years, and the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development says the loss is due to an emerging post-industrial society.

"The number of people working in manufacturing is dropping as industries modernize their plants and hire fewer blue collar workers," said Paul Richards, a department spokesman.

Richards said the state also is getting more service industries, such as distribution facilities employing skilled and white collar workers.

Ohio has had a record of migration out of the state since 1965, Richards said.

"Our society has become more and more mobile," he said. "People are more willing to move, and when they retire, they leave the state."

New U. S. Census Bureau figures estimate Ohio's population at 10,731,000 on July 1, 1973, compared to 10,625,017 on April 1, 1970.

During the same period, there were an estimated 264,000 more births than deaths in Ohio. Since the absolute population increased by about 79,000, the Census Bureau concluded 185,000 residents moved from Ohio.

Traditionally, Richards said, immigrants to the Buckeye State have come from Appalachia and other southern regions.

"But they are becoming industrialized," he said. "People don't have to migrate to Ohio to find a job anymore."

Race card concluded at Fayette Fair

By MARK REA
Record-Herald Sports Writer

Allstar Special, driven by Harold Snyder and owned by Doris Kirk of Washington C.H., took the Ohio Colt Racing Association's three year-old Stakes in straight heats. Sweet Interlude, driven by Ron Cornwell and owned by the Jackson Glove Manufacturing Stable of Washington C.H., won the "Adios Butler Filly Pace" for three year-old fillies. Both triumphs were recorded at the Fayette County Fairgrounds track in the last night of harness racing.

In other action last night, Racing Ace turned in the fastest mile of the three nights and 41 total races to win the Faye Junk Memorial Blanket. Racing Ace blazed through two laps of the half-mile track in 2:04.4

Two objections were filed last night in the first race and third race. The objection was interference against Allstar Special in the first and against King Duncan in the third. Both objections were ruled out.

Driver Dick Buxton was the big winner last night, as he drove three winners. He drove Racing Ace in the sixth, Dean of Deans in the 11th, and Dean of Deans again in the 16th.

Plenty of Washington C.H. owned colts stepped into the winner's circle alongwith Allstar Special and Sweet Interlude. King Duncan, owned by McArthur Realty, won the third race; Mighty Casey, owned by N. Wentworth and C. Cobb, captured the 12th race; four horse from Washington C.H. finished second and one finished third during the 16th race card.

During the 10th race, there was a small mishap that caused two horses to be unable to finish the race. Sophia K., driven by Don Yeazel, apparently had a tire blow-out on his sulky causing Lakewood Bud, driven by Steve Moore, to almost run over the top of Yeazel. As a result, neither horse finished the heat.

For many longshot players, the night was a great racing night as many horses paid big money. In the third race, King Duncan paid $34.20 to win; Amy Butler paid $26.60 to win in the fourth race; Dreamy Rene paid $12.20 to place in the eighth; Jake Hal paid $11.40 to show in the ninth; Forever Adios paid $25.40 to place in the 10th; Miss Mandy paid $22.00 to place in the 12th; and Wampums Cutie paid $32.80 to win in the 13th race.

During the three nights of racing, bets were made in the excess of $40,000. Monday night, $11,800 was bet, Tuesday, $14,300 was turned in, and last night over $20,000 was collected.

Tonight, the grandstand will feature a tractor pull attracting entrants and enthusiasts from all corners of Ohio. Grandstand admission will be $1.00.

Another new record in pari-mutuel betting was recorded Wednesday evening, as a total of $20,641 was recorded.

Jacksonville topped by California, 22-19

By The Associated Press

Jacksonville can't kick ... not enough, anyway.

And Gary Davidson certainly can't. Not after the World Football League commissioner saw his "action and entertainment" dream explode into reality in football-mad Birmingham.

The Sharks set a WFL record Wednesday night—not a hard feat considering the league's only a few weeks old—when they kicked four field goals in the first half of their game against Southern California.

Grant Guthrie booted threepointers of 23, 29, 27 and 42 yards. It turned out to be three points too few—or perhaps the game turned out to be seven seconds too long for Jacksonville.

On the last play of the game, rookie quarterback Tony Adams from Utah State heaved a 40-yard touchdown pass to Dave Williams and the Sun came up shining with a 22-19 victory that shocked the 46,780 Sharks fans.

In Wednesday night's other WFL games, the Birmingham Americans clobbered Memphis 58-33, the Chicago Fire turned back Portland 29-22 and the Florida Blazers beat Houston 15-3. The New York Stars are in Philadelphia tonight for the WFL's nationally televised game against the Bell.

As a WFL-record 61,319 fans at Legion Field shrieked their approval, veteran George Mira and rookie Matthew Reed of Grambling decimated Memphis' secondary with 378 aerial yards and five touchdown passes—three to Alfred Jenkins—to keep the Americans unbeaten.

Mira threw 38 and 74-yard scoring strikes to Jenkins and one to Dennis Homan for 12 yards. In the third period, Mira bowed out with a sprained ankle.

Fire 29, Storm 22

Virgil Carter of the Fire had a hot night in the air, too. He threw touchdown passes of 50 yards to Mark Keller, one yard to Cyril Pinder and 69 yards to James Scott to as Chicago took advantage of Storm mistakes to stay tied with Birmingham atop the Central Division.

Blazers 15, Texans 3

Rookie running back Tommy Reamon rambled for 73 yards, 15 of them good for a touchdown, and caught an actionpoint pass in the Blazers' easy victory over the Texans, whose only points came on a 47-yard Charlie Durkee field goal.

By The Associated Press

Johnny Unitas is headed for the Pro Football Hall of Fame—but there's a growing chance the St. Louis Cardinals and Buffalo Bills may not see the Canton, Ohio, shrine this year.

The National Football League players' strike, which earlier this month kayeed Friday night's College All-Star Game, is going after Saturday's nationally televised Hall of Fame Game between the Cards and Bills—the kickoff of the preseason schedule—as its next target.

And the players picked up a few key blocks Wednesday when spokesmen for the United Auto Workers Union said they would join players picketing the game.

Two managers making debuts in heavy baseball schedule

By The Associated Press

Now that the All-Star Game is history, all the stars can get back to the business of settling the four division races in the remaining 10 weeks of the baseball season.

That's just what they will start to do today as the major leagues resume where they left off Sunday with two new managers and a whopping 17-game schedule that includes five twilight-night doubleheaders.

Jim Marshall debuts as manager of the Chicago Cubs when they entertain the Philadelphia Phillies in an afternoon contest. Marshall replaces Whitey Lockman, who resigned Wednesday to devote full time to his other duties as vice president in charge of player development.

Under the lights in Atlanta, Clyde King takes over as manager of the Braves against the San Diego Padres. King once managed the San Francisco Giants and has been a special assistant to Eddie Robinson, vice president of the Braves, for two years.

Marshall, who managed for six seasons in the Cubs' farm system, was a Cub coach this year and was Lockman's own choice as his successor. Lockman was in his second full season after succeeding Leo Durocher in mid-1972.

The Cubs, who traded away a number of veteran stars last winter, have a 41-52 record and are fifth in the National League's East Division, seven games out of first place and just one-half game out of the cellar.

Marshall was given a contract until the end of the season.

King's contract also is until the end of the season. Robinson said that if a Chillicothe Ladies softball team will be sponsoring a women's slo-pitch softball tournament on August 9-11. The tournament will be played on the Yocangee Park diamonds and the drawing will be held at the Diamond 1 press box on August 6 to 7 p.m.

Entry fee for the tournament is $40. If a team representative can not be present at the drawing, the tournament manager should be notified. Any team wishing to enter the event should contact Iris Ward, Box 104, Bourneville, Ohio 45617.

The 26 club owners have acknowledged that this year's game—and all contests during the Aug. 2-5 first week of exhibitions—may not be all they could be.

They've admitted that, because of the 25-day-old strike, they'll be using mostly rookies and free agents and only a smattering of stars and other veterans and, thus, have instituted a league-wide policy of ticket refunds for those games.

Contract talks between the NFL Players Association and the owners' NFL Management Council, which have taken more turns than a broken-field runner, collapsed completely Monday. There have been no meetings since then and none are expected at least through the weekend.

Unitas, acclaimed as one of the greatest quarterbacks in the history of pro football, retired Wednesday after 18 years in the NFL. The strike had nothing to do with it, though. Two weeks go, Unitas was the lone San Diego veteran to cross the players' picket line and enter the Chargers' camp for workouts.

Unitas, who passed for more touchdowns and more yards than any other player in the league, explained: "I didn't feel my legs were capable of taking the punishment they would have had to take ... I hate to quit playing football. The mind is willing but your body wears out."

change is made next year, "Hank Aaron would be considered."

Aaron, who has often said he doesn't want to manage, expressed resentment at the All-Star Game in Pittsburgh Tuesday night that the Braves had summarily ruled him out along with his brother, Tommie Aaron, manager of the Braves' Savannah, Ga., team in the Southern League.

New regime recognizes Makarios

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The new civilian government of Greece has freed all political prisoners and recognized Archbishop Makarios as president of Cyprus. But the new head of the Greek Cypriot regime on the island, President Glafcos Clerides, said he would not hand the office back to the archbishop.

One of Premier Constantine Caramanlis' first acts after naming a 12-man cabinet on Wednesday was to declare a general amnesty for all those jailed for political dissent during the seven years of military dictatorship.

Citizenship was restored to all who had been deprived of it, including actress Melina Mercouri, leftist political leader Andreas Papandreu and composer Mikos Theodorakis. The new government emptied the Yiaros Island concentration camp and shut it down.

Theodorakis flew home from Paris and said he thought the return to power of Caramanlis was a positive step. But he pointed out that "the political left is excluded" from the government.

The cabinet members are all centrists or rightists, and men of economic and bureaucratic expertise, indicating Caramanlis planned a speedy assault on inflation and other economic woes.

Foreign Minister George Mavros, also the deputy premier, announced the new regime's repudiation of the coup in Cyprus, generally believed to have been the work of the dictatorship. He said Greece "has accepted fully the United Nations Security Council decision on Cyprus We, therefore, recognize President Makarios as the legal head of Cyprus."

But in Nicosia, the Cypriot capital, President Clerides said the people of Cyprus should decide the presidency, and he would hold an election "not later than within a few months."

Asked if Makarios could run, he said: "In a free country every citizen has the right to present himself for election." But he warned that "it would be a very unwise move for Makarios to come back under the present conditions."

The 61-year-old archbishop was proclaimed president automatically last year for a third-five year term when no candidate opposed him. Now in New York, he said earlier this week he planned to return to Cyprus in a few weeks. But there was no immediate comment from him on Clerides' statements.

Clerides was Makarios' closest associate, political heir and the president of the House of Representatives. The latter post made him the constitutional successor to the president, and he moved into the top spot Tuesday after the collapse of the dictatorship in Athens pulled the rug from under the coup leaders in Cyprus.

No major fighting was reported on Cyprus Wednesday, but the Indian commander of the United Nations peacekeeping force reported indications Wednesday night that 400-500 Turkish troops with tanks were digging in 500 yards from the Nicosia airport and would try to seize it during the night.

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim called the Security Council into emergency session in New York to deal with the reported threat. But Turkish Foreign Minister Turan Gunes sent Waldheim a message assuring him that Turkey would not threaten or use force against the troops at the airport. Several council members said they were satisfied, and the council adjourned.

Meanwhile, a contingent of 500 British troops in armored cars was reported on its way to the airport from British bases in south Cyprus to bolster the U.N. force.

Clerides accused the Turks of moving heavy armor since the cease-fire.

Gunes, Greek Foreign Minister Mavros and British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan were to meet in Geneva tonight to begin peace negotiations for Cyprus. Their three nations are the guarantors of the island's independence under the treaty that freed it from Britain in 1960.

It was expected that the ministers would meet for about three days, adopt a communique supporting the cease-fire and create a working group. The group is to begin concrete negotiations to resolve such issues as the withdrawal of the Greek army officers who led the coup, the withdrawal of the Turkish invasion forces, the future government of Cyprus and future relations between the Greek majority and the Turkish minority on Cyprus.

Clerides expressed little faith in the outcome of the Geneva talks, saying foreign governments could not work out a peace formula and impose it. He said a peaceful agreement could only be achieved by talks between the Greek and Turkish Cypriots "under the umbrella of the United Nations."

High court kills desegregation plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today struck down by a 5-4 vote, a controversial desegregation plan calling for busing pupils across school district lines in the Detroit area.

The decision sent the case back to U.S. District Court in Detroit, where the plan was approved two years ago by the late Judge Steven J. Roth.

Another judge will now consider the matter.

The Supreme Court said Roth erred in ordering a desegregation plan embracing both Detroit and its suburbs without any evidence as to whether the suburban districts were segregated.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, speaking for the court, said federal courts may not impose multidistrict desegregation plans where there is no finding that all the school districts included had failed to operate integrated school systems.

Justice Thurgood Marshall, the only black member of the court, dissented, saying:

"We deal here with the right of all of our children, whatever their race, to an equal start in life and to an equal opportunity to reach their full potential as citizens. Those children who have been denied that right in the past deserve better than to see fences thrown up to deny them that right in the future."

Also dissenting were Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan and Byron R. White.

Besides its impact in Detroit, the decision could affect schools in Louisville and Jefferson County, Ky., which were ordered by a federal judge Tuesday to merge in order to achieve better racial balance.

It will have more indirect affects in many other cities.

Roth's decision had called for busing of pupils in a three-county around Detroit. It was appealed by Michigan officials and by suburban school districts, but not by the Detroit district, which is about 64 per cent black.

The same question came before the Supreme Court last year in a case arising in Richmond, Va.

The court deadlocked 4-4 in the Richmond case, with Justice Lewis Powell, a former member of the Richmond school board, abstaining.

The tie vote had the effect of upholding the lower court order for cross-district busing in the Richmond area but did not establish any precedent for future cases.

Deputies check vandal report

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department investigated an incident of malicious vandalism and the theft of a 10-speed bicycle.

A five inch by twelve inch window pane at the Randy D. Maag residence, 1509 N. North St., was broken sometime between 8 p.m. and 9 p.m. Wednesday, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported.

A 10-speed bicycle owned by Danny Kemmit, 526 Rawlins St., was stolen from the Fayette County Fairground, sometime before 9:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Sheriff's deputies described the bicycle as being yellow with black forks.

Elton E. Taylor, 41, of 1004 S. North St., became ill at his home at 7:46 p.m. Wednesday, police reported.

Taylor was taken by Gerstner-Kinzer ambulance service to Fayette Memorial Hospital and then transferred to the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Chillicothe.

Bomb scare

He runs over his allotted 15 minutes. Rodino gives him an extra three then bangs his gavel. The next speaker, Democrat William L. Hungate of Missouri yields two of his. Railsback takes four.

At 10:38 p.m., 11 down and 27 to go, Rodino ends the session.

Almost sheepishly, he announces another bomb scare.

Glenn won't underestimate Perk chances

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — John Glenn, the Democratic candidate for U. S. Senate, isn't "putting any stock" in polls that show him running more than 40 percentage points ahead of his GOP opponent.

He told newsmen at his Columbus headquarters Wednesday he is taking his campaign against Mayor Ralph Perk of Cleveland very seriously and intends to wage "just as tough" a campaign in the fall as he did last spring.

Glenn quoted a friend as advising him not to discount his opponent.

"I've been underestimating Ralph Perk for 20 years, and everything he ran for, there just wasn't any way he could win, but he did," the former astronaut quoted the friend as saying.

In response to questions, Glenn said he has discussed with Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the possibility that Ohio's Democratic candidate could wind up sitting as a juror in the U. S. Senate in a presidential impeachment trial.

Glenn said Mansfield told him he believes that if a trial is under way when newly elected senators are sworn in next January, they will be permitted to replace their predecessors as jurors.

"He said the new senators simply would be given a transcript of the trial to date, and the trial could proceed," Glenn said.

The former Marine colonel said he was pleased by the U. S. Supreme Court decision that ordered the president to surrender certain tapes for use as evidence in Watergate trials.

"I hope he will promptly honor the court's decision. In that way, every bit of evidence will be reviewed," he said.

Bloomington man charged with larceny

A 30-year-old Bloomington man was arrested and charged with larceny by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department at 2:18 a.m. Thursday.

Dewey T. Keaton was observed in a car at the Sohio gas station, Ohio 38 and I-71, by Fayette County Sheriff's Deputy Dave Krupla, who was making his business patrol within the area at the time.

Upon talking to Keaton, Deputy Krupla noticed an automobile starter lying in Keaton's car. Upon further investigation, Deputy Krupla found that the starter had been apparently removed from another vehicle belonging to Marcus Tucker, Louisville, Ky., parked at the Sohio station.

The Tucker vehicle had been left at the station for repairs after becoming disabled on I-71.

Keaton is presently incarcerated in the Fayette County jail in lieu of $1,000 bond and scheduled to appear in municipal court.

The absence on boards of directors of outside thinkers whose function is to inject bridges of understanding with outside groups is one of the most common reasons that many organizations find the human climate stormy. So says Philip Lesly in his book, "The People Factor: Managing the Human Climate."

Judge seals probe data

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Frank Battisti took the unusual move Wednesday of sealing returns from 11 search warrants exercised last week by FBI agents seeking records of loan shark transactions.

The returns were sealed at the request of the head of the Justice Department's Strike Force against Organized Crime, David Margolis. Margolis wouldn't say why the returns were sealed, declaring that that information also is under the court's protective order.

Federal records show that the FBI was seeking records of concealed extortion credit transactions.
